We are blessed with many outstanding Catholic educators, but there are not enough teachers with the right formation and qualifications to staff all schools adequately in terms of the Catholic Character.

As a long-time Māori Catholic educator, I am delighted that the Catholic Institute has worked hard to make the qualifications needed by our teachers more accessible and Māori Spirituality is integral to the qualifications.

The Catholic school system in New Zealand is blessed with many outstanding Catholic educators, but there are not enough people available with the right formation and qualifications to staff all schools adequately in terms of the Catholic character.
